

CHURCHES TO HOLD A "STUDENTS' DAY"

October 8 Is Set Aside by Columbia Pastors in Meeting at Y.M.C.A.

TO NAME COMMITTEE

Plans Made Allowing Students to Affiliate With Local Churches.

To designate October 8 as Students' Sunday was the plan decided upon yesterday morning by the Columbia ministers and other representatives of the churches at their meeting in the Y. M. C. A. Building. This is only part of a general plan by the local churches to more definitely interest the University students in the work of the different religious organizations.

A Students' Sunday committee will be selected from the older students and others in the Bible study classes, the young people's societies and other church organizations. This committee will have charge of the publicity work for the occasion and will take definite steps toward securing the attendance and interest of new students.

Making it possible for a student to take out a student affiliate membership in a local church is another part of the plan to get more students actively interested in the churches here. A certificate from the students' home church will entitle him to the affiliate membership, which automatically ends when he leaves this city. This will enable the churches to receive those students, who, always before, have hesitated to break with their home church.

Those at the meeting also made plans to get hold of the religious statistics obtained in the registration immediately after the opening days, instead of several weeks afterward as formerly. This will enable the churches to take steps at once toward getting in touch with the new and old students of their respective denominations.

URGES INSPECTION OF MILK

E. G. Bennett Says People Are Exacting in Demands for Purity.

E. G. Bennett, state dairy commissioner, who returned yesterday from Liberty, Mo., where he held a dairy meeting, says there never has been a time when the public was more exacting in its demands for purity, cleanliness and wholesomeness of milk and milk products than now.

"The progressive dairies, milk distributing plants, creameries and cheese factories today are equipped with the latest devices for the proper handling of the products while undergoing preparation, preparatory to being placed in the consumer's hands in approved condition.

"Milk bearing the stamp of approval and merit by those in authority is not a guarantee that it will keep wholesome if not properly cared for in the home or retail shop. Containers should be thoroughly sterilized and carefully dried; milk should be kept cold and at regular temperature, and should also be kept covered. Milk absorbs odors very readily and should be kept free from contaminating influences."

Mr. Bennett favors the passage by towns and cities of ordinances regulating the local milk supply. These ordinances, he says, should provide for inspection of all places where milk is produced for the public and for the protection of the consumers against the sale and use of unwholesome milk.

ricultural Engineering Work.

Professor Lehman last year was employed in the department of agricultural engineering at Ames, Iowa. At the University he will be a member of the faculty of engineering and also of the agricultural faculty. Professor Lehman has had a good deal of experience in connection with engineering work as it is applied to agriculture.

BOONE COUNTY APPLES ARE BEST

Fruit Buyers of State Say They Bring Highest Prices.

Fruit buyers in the southern part of Boone County to buy the apple crop now being harvested said today that they paid a higher price for the apples of that section than they have paid for apples from any other part of this state. The apple buyers stated further that they would not pay a higher price for any fruit they have seen in Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Arkansas or Northern Illinois.

Doctor Whitten of the University department of horticulture says the apples now being harvested in southern Boone County are of excellent quality. The late apples also give much promise, Doctor Whitten says.

"May-Time in Missouri" Issued.

The Missouri State Board of Agriculture has for free distribution a sixteen page booklet, entitled "May-Time in Missouri," by Jewell Mayes, secretary of the board. The booklet tells of the beauties and wonders of Missouri in the spring, and it carries pictures of beautiful Missouri scenery on every page.

KNOWS HIS BROTHERS BY THE MARKS ON THEIR ARMS

Pins and jewels are not the only emblems by which groups may be joined. Have you ever seen a person, man or woman, roll his or her sleeve and display a picture on the forearm? If you have you are familiar with the tattoo.

The greater number of people boasting of these marks are soldiers of fortune. Among them, there is a belief that these different tokens on the arms will be a protection in time of need. For instance, a ship tattooed on the arm is sometimes thought to be a great protection against drowning. But there are many uses and abuses of this custom, or fad. In the armies and navies of the world, an expert in this line appears, and consents to "brand" a soldier free, so as to use him as an advertisement. When the other members of the company see this mark of distinction, they are filled with the envy of the artistic production, and in a short time the entire company is tattooed.

But the mark may be used to advantage, and be a means of identification, or the mark of an organization or order. Two men met on the streets of this city recently, and each extended the left hand, on the back of which is tattooed a fly with a Roman numeral underneath. This is the mark of the "Flying Six," a crack company in the United States Navy. The entire company of sixty men, now scattered over the world, is marked with the emblem of the "Flying Six," and anyone imitating this emblem is considered a rank intruder.

The tattoo is also used for personal identification. When this is the object, the initials and an address of the person are given. As the mark is something that cannot be removed, it answers this purpose well, and is very beneficial at times.

Many are proud of the mark; others wish to cover it,—it all depends on the circumstances under which they were tattooed. Psychologists and criminologists say that the criminal has a tendency toward the love of marks and brands on the body. The arms are sometimes decorated from the wrist to the shoulder, and there are cases where the entire body is covered with the ink. When the circus was in its "prime," one of the main shows was "The tattooed man all covered with ink, and the dog-faced boy called the 'missing link.' But the day of the tattoo is passing, even the circus roustabout—even he—does not display to the admiring eyes his beautifully decorated arms and chest in the same glory that he was wont to do.
